I like the idea of having a wallet app that I can put money in, that goes to my credit card company and from there it's divided between my credit card, my bank, the credit card company, and my company for my US 401k. I want to see all of this in one app with a summary of all of this to compare the actual costs with my expectations. Does anyone know of a good iPad app for this? I don't want it to do my spending, but be my guide. I would prefer one that is free, but not a necessary. A: I would suggest a spreadsheet that you can share to the web. This would be a good central place to keep track of your money and make quick comparisons between your actual spending and your budget. A: I would suggest a web page with a Money Diary like this. It will be a great tool for you to plan and budget. You can easily add new transactions or just log in and view old ones. Q: Good Sqlite tutorials? My Fantasy Maker is a nice app for editing images. It's very easy to use and has a few settings that help you create different kinds of masks. The program is designed to work with general photographs, but also with scanned images, diagrams, drawings and more. The tool comes with several features that allow you to manage shapes. You can erase specific areas of the image, swap them with others and even resize them however you want. You can also modify their position and rotation. These operations are typically reversible, so you can always do it again if you don't like it the first time. In short, the tool is easy to use and gives you all the control you need. Basically, the app has two modes of operation. One is used to create masks, while the other is used for creating actual masks. In its first mode, you can add the faces with the help of a simple interface. Each of them has a name and a size of both the face and the corresponding body. The program also includes a helpful type indicator to help you pick the right type of template. The faces can be moved and rotated to create the perfect fit for both faces and bodies. Furthermore, you can click and drag to resize the faces accordingly. In order to create the faces, My Fantasy Maker uses the first mode of operation. There, you can either copy the faces from any image to the Mac clipboard or paste the image directly. You can then use a few tools to delimit the area from which you want to create the face. This way, you can select only what you want, as the other body parts are blacked out. The body can then be rotated to match the rotation of the face. Finally, the body and the face can be moved and resized to fit the selected area. If you need to swap the face with a body or vice versa, the tool gives you several options to do so. You can click and drag any of the objects to select them and then click and drag the desired object to its original position. The application also allows you to click and drag on the image and then click on a different area to continue the swap. Finally, the tool includes some additional tools to adjust various aspects of the image. Thus, the app can increase and reduce the image's sharpness, change the image's saturation, brightness and tint. My Fantasy Maker Description: My Fantasy Maker is a great tool for editing pictures. The app'
