Kyle O'Quinn, the Houston Texans free agent cornerback, is not expected to be signed by any other team until the new league year begins on March 13, and that could play a huge role in his negotiations with the Texans. In an interview with the Vertical, O'Quinn, who was released by the New England Patriots over the weekend, said that some clubs may not be interested in him until they start making their moves after the start of the new league year. "I've had some clubs saying, 'We might not be interested until March,'" O'Quinn told the Vertical. "There are several teams that, once they get into the new year, see what they can do to fill their corners up front and they're going to start exploring their corners a bit more. That's fine by me. I'm excited to be in a situation where I can start to understand all the teams around the league and what each one needs." A long-time starter, O'Quinn said he wants to be a starter and that he's willing to do what it takes to reach that goal. "I want to play starter, I want to play every down," O'Quinn said. "If that means I get the right opportunity and the best opportunity to be up there and be productive, I'll be excited. I think when you're a starter, you're going to have a better chance of making it a career in the National Football League and doing it on a consistent basis, and that's what I want. I'm going to have to work, obviously. When you start playing as many snaps as I do, there's going to be some things you miss out on. There are other things I'll do to work as hard as I can." O'Quinn, who missed all of last season after undergoing hernia surgery in April 2017, added that he wanted to be ready for opening day. "I want to be ready by the start of the season," O'Quinn said. "That's what I'm working toward. That's why I'm in this position right now. Being out there with these guys is something special."

What's New in the Adobe Photoshop CC 2018?

Hundreds of dogs are dying from treatable conditions like mange, cancer and heartworms. Homeowners are intentionally leaving dogs outside without food or shelter during the heatwave. The rescue group Animal Justice is investigating more than 100 dog deaths in Queensland and Victoria since January. Susannah Rowe from Animal Justice says cases are often linked to single mothers. "Their children are being looked after by another family member and it's very common that it's grandmothers and it's also very common that those who are doing this are not being prosecuted," she said. "We're seeing large scale cruelty charges for dog fighting, but in doing that we've seen cases that look at dog-on-dog fighting. "But we see people just walking them onto a street, leaving them alone in their cars, leaving them outside in the heat and leaving them in that state." Animal Justice says nearly half of the animals they see at its investigations are flea-infested and a significant number are ill and dying of treatable conditions like mange. Those involved in the dog-fighting ring include young children and people with mental health issues. Susannah Rowe says dog fighting is organised and structured in more than 90 per cent of cases. "It is not a matter of two siblings throwing a ball and playing with a dog or cats, it is not a matter of having a pet, the dog is just a tool that people use to fight for their own enjoyment." Animal Justice is now launching an education campaign to raise awareness of animal cruelty and warn that parents should be prepared to face up to potential legal consequences. It's also calling for a ban on dogs being left to suffer in the heat and a requirement that pets must be left with people who are registered with a Pet Training and Protection service. The euro-zone economy unexpectedly contracted in the second quarter, with domestic demand falling for the first time in 13 years, according to official data. Germany's economy shrank 0.1 percent in the second quarter from the previous three months, while Italy contracted 0.5 percent, the Bank of Italy said. The data is evidence that the euro zone's economies are still suffering from the aftereffects of the world's deepest ever economic crisis. On Tuesday, Italy confirmed its recession — its fourth in five years — with data showing a 0.9 percent decline in the quarter. It was the
