FAQ Q: How long does the game last? A: The game lasts for roughly one hour each session. Q: How long does it take to save and load? A: The save time depends on how many times you log in in one session and the connection speed of the server. It typically takes about five minutes. Q: How many people can I play in one session? A: It's difficult to confirm exactly how many people can play at one time, but you can expect roughly two to eight people. Q: Is there a maximum number of people in one session? A: It's difficult to confirm the exact number of people, but we believe it is definitely not more than eight. Q: If I play with others, do we play together? A: Each time you log in, you can play alone or with others. You can register for a separate save in multiplayer, but at this time, multiplayer is not currently available. Q: Is the client capable of playing online? A: Yes, but it depends on the presence of other players. Q: When will the client be open to registration? A: Unfortunately, we do not know the exact launch date. Q: What's the difference between the "exact" release and the general release? A: We have received feedback from many customers who requested the inclusion of early access to the game. We are planning to open registration for the exact release on February 26. Q: Can I play the new Fantasy Action RPG in its current state? A: You cannot currently play the game for free. For the time being, we are asking for your patience until we complete the "early access" period. Q: What will happen to the client during the early access period? A: We will not update the client during the early access period. However, we will continue to collect feedback and make improvements to the game during this period. Q: Will the game be updated while it is in the early access period? A: We will make changes and additions to the game based on your feedback. We are planning to make a change to the game at the same time as we open registration for the exact release. Q: What operating system is the client compatible with? A: The client is compatible with Mac OS X, Windows,

2017-10-24T00:00:00ZElden RingBeyond Facebook's implicit social behavior Facebook's autoplay music feature means I am now unable to browse an entire website without it playing music at random, which makes me want to be cordless while I'm walking down the street. I'm going through some autoplay-related frustration right now. One, the ludicrously cheeky "Like" button. Seriously, why can I not decide whether or not I want to like something on my own time? If you can't give me a choice, please do not invite me to make that choice. A simple Yes/No pop-up is acceptable (unless I dislike the site's design, then no). Two, the autoplay videos that I cannot select to play. How nice it would be if the only videos people could autoplay were prepared to actually pay attention to what I say. Can
