Pakistan Studies Book By Ikram Rabbani In Urdu Pdf DownloadPages Monday, September 30, 2015 I was recently reading about a country musician in concert who wanted some help with his phrasing. Well, this was a different sort of help. He said he would like to be told if he had a good or bad note in some particular chord progression. I know that it is easy to have a good or bad note in some particular chord progression. What is less easy is that some chord progressions have good notes and some have bad notes in them. For example, the G7 (Bb) chord is usually a very good note in any particular chord progression. The fact that it is such a good note in that progression has actually given it a name: it is called the G-Mode Chord. The Bb chord is also a very good note in F# major (A major) or G minor (E minor) chords. On the other hand, the chord G7 is not usually a very good note in C (E major) or C (F#m) chords. The E chord is usually a very good note in B7 (C#m) or F chords. The D chord is usually a very good note in G chords and a bad note in A7 (F#m) chords. The F chord is usually a very good note in C7 (G#m) chords and a bad note in the D (C#) chord. Looking at these examples, you will discover a pattern which tends to apply to good notes and bad notes. For any particular chord progression, it is easy to tell if it is good or bad in one or more of the chords that make up the progression. Usually the G7 (Bb) chord is a good note in any particular progression, but if that chord is followed by a D, the progression is bad, and if the chord is followed by a F, the progression is bad, etc. Here is an example. For the whole of "My Sharona," the progression Fm - Gm - Fm is good. For the whole of "Smells Like Teen Spirit," the progression Fm - G - Fm is bad. If the notes of a particular chord progression do not fit the pattern of good notes and bad notes, that progression is often a bad

Monday, January 18, 2017 Blogs Tax Reform - Progress or no Progress? I am posting this because I don't have anything new to share today but just to remind you that I DO know about the tax reform and have been tracking this very closely. For those wondering, the reason I am posting about this is because there is still a solid chance that we could see tax reform passed. However, the plan has been altered and is now down to the Senate to decide. My guess is that if the votes are there in the Senate, then yes, Trump will sign the bill. However, if they still are not able to pass it in the Senate, we could see another partial government shutdown or something similar where the proposal dies on the Hill. If that happens, Trump may work to the plans of the "American Jobs Act" in 2017. Stay tuned for the impact that will have on the stock market. Bonus I was going to post about the oil stocks, but I don't see how you could make a case that an increase in taxes on 6d1f23a050
