Firstly, you need to download Windows 7 Ultimate to your PC. It is a good idea to turn off your computer during this process. It is impossible to upgrade a computer OS while its running. Turn off your computer and then start Windows 7 Ultimate from the installation media you created with the Windows 7 DVD or CD. After the installation is finished, turn off your computer once again. When you start Windows 7 Ultimate from the installation media, you should be able to see a screen similar to this below. Use your keyboard keys to select Upgrade if your version of Windows has not been activated: By pressing the Upgrade button, Windows 7 Ultimate will be upgraded to a higher version and the computer will restart. Now, you have to do the activation process again. To do this, go into the Start Menu and click on Windows Accessories. Or another scenario, people with not activated Windows can insert the DVD of the genuine Windows 10 or Windows 8.1 into the DVD drive of the computer. When the computer boots from the DVD, it will enter a black boot loader screen instead of the windows logo. The system would then be unactivated.
